But little space remains disengaged on the trans-Pacific steamers sched-uled to sail from Portland up to late the Frank Waterhouse Company may decide to send another freighter here in November to assist the regular fleet in taking care of the increased traffic. The same situation is said to be true with the lines running from Puget Sound to China and Japan. Officials of the Blue Funnel line have given out that they will be unable to make additional bookings for freight until after Christmas, In the meantime practically every steamer leaving Portland and the Sound will go out laden to capacity with wheat and flour. The increased business is reported to be attributable partly to the cut in rates made last month by all of the lines operating from the Pacific Northwest, Two steamers of the Waterbouse fleet the Strathlyon and Orteric-will sail from Portland this month. The Strathlyon was scheduled to go out September 20 and the Orteric September 30. The Orteric will take out 55,000 barrels of flour and 100 tons of wheat from Portland and go to
